

SOCIAL INTELLIGENCE IN CHILDREN KINDERGARTEN

EMAN ABBAS ALI AL-KAFAF

The University of Mustasiriyah

ABSTRACT_ This study aimed to identify the social intelligence, and adopted the researcher test of the concept of social intelligence prepared by (Hayali 0.2010) for the Iraqi environment for children ages six years and grade primer, containing (7) paragraphs, and after verifying the validity and reliability of the tool applied study on a sample of (100) children from 10 kindergartens in preschool class and took the final weeks of the application period, as it began to 6/11/2011, and ended on 10/11/2011, the study found:

- The presence of an advanced degree in the growth of social intelligence in a sample search children came as a mean larger than average premise of the scale.
- No statistically significant difference between the average scores of social intelligence of kindergarten children according to gender variable in favor of males.
- That the educational attainment of the father in all school levels (primary, secondary and Institute) had had no role in the emergence of social intelligence in a sample search children.
- That the educational attainment of the mother at all school levels (primary, secondary and Institute) had a role in the emergence of social intelligence in a sample search children.

Key words: social intelligence, kindergarten.