

THE ROLE OF MORAL INTELLIGENCE IN REDUCING SPORTS INTOLERANCE AMONG STUDENTS OF KING ABDUL-AZIZ UNIVERSITY

SALEH Y. AL – JARALLA AL-GHAMDI
King Abdul-Aziz University

ABSTRACT_ The aim of this study is to examine the relationship between moral intelligence and sports intolerance. participants in this study were King Abdul Aziz University's students (n = 218) with average age of (21.52) and standard deviation of (0.754). The researcher used the Moral Intelligence Scale (MIS) prepared by Borba (Mohammed [1], and sports intolerance scale (SIS) which developed by the (researcher, 2017). The study founding has showed that there was a negative correlation between the moral intelligence and sports intolerance among the students of King Abdul Aziz University, and existence of significant differences between the average scores of students of scientific colleges and theoretical studies in Moral intelligence at a level of significance (0.001) for favor of scientific students. The study also showed that the level of moral intelligence in the study's sample at the low level of (001,0) in the direction of theoretical college students. The researcher came out with a set of recommendations, the most important were: The importance of reaffirming the role of the family and the community in instilling moral values, and developing religious and moral conscience for its people. And To make the students in schools and universities aware of the importance of compliance with good morals and good Islamic values.*

Keyword: moral intelligence, sports intolerance, King Abdul Aziz University's students.*